Reall Dyspepsia Tablets remedy stomach troubles by aiding nature to supply the elements the absence of which in the gastric juices causes indigestion and dyspepsia. They aid the stomach to digest and to quickly convert it into rich, red blood and material necessary for overcoming natural body waste.

Carry a package of Reall Dyspepsia Tablets in your vest pocket, or keep them in your room. Take one after each heavy meal and prove my assertion that indigestion will not bother you.

I know what Reall Dyspepsia Tablets are and what they will do. I guarantee them to relieve indigestion and dyspepsia. If they fail I will refund your money. Three sizes: 25c, 50c and $1. Remember, you can obtain Reall Remedies only at my store—The Rexall Store, Thos. J. Chenoweth, corner Second and Sutton streets.

PERRY MEMORIAL DESIGN

Work of a New York Architect is Selected

The Perry Centennial Commission on Monday evening selected from the 54 designs submitted, that of Architect J. H. Friedlander of New York City, for the permanent memorial to be erected at Put-in-Bay.

The monument will consist of a doric column 320 feet high with a light and spectators' gallery at the top. The structure will stand on a plaza at each end of which will be a building, one as an emblem of the one hundred years of peace between United States and England, while the other will be used as a historical museum. There will be a life saving station and a wireless telegraph station in connection with the memorial. The structure, when completed, is estimated to cost $600,000 and will be dedicated September 10th, 1913.

HER FRIEND'S GOOD ADVICE

The Results Made This Newburg Lady Glad She Followed Suggestion.

Newburg, Ala.—"For more than a year," writes Myrtle Cothurn, of this place, "I suffered with terrible pains in my back and head. I had a sallow complexion, and my face was covered with pimples. Our family doctor only gave me temporary relief.

A friend of mine advised me to try Cardui, so I began taking it, at once, and with the best results, for I was cured after taking two bottles. My mother and my aunt have also used Cardui and were greatly benefited. I shall always praise Cardui to sick and suffering women."

Cardui is a purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, tonic remedy for women, and will benefit young and old. Its ingredients are mild herbs, having a gentle, tonic effect, on the womanly constitution. Cardui has helped a million women back to health and strength. Have you tried it? If not, please do. It may be just what you need.

Found a Friend in Lincoln

WHEN coming from the reunion banquet of the One Hundred and Thirty-seventh Ohio volunteer Infantry, which took place at the Grant hotel, Louis P. Bentley of Ludlow, Ky., after hearing eulogies of the war heroes, and especially of Abraham Lincoln, remarked to Alexander Hill, Sr.: "You did not know that for some months I was once a member of Abraham Lincoln's family, did you?"

"No, how did that happen?" asked Mr. Hill eagerly.

Then in a burst of patriotic pride and confidence, Mr. Bentley told the story which he has always kept to himself and family from an undue sense of modesty, which explains why Miss Ida Tarbell did not find him in writing her book, "He Knew Lincoln."

"It was in 1858," said Mr. Bentley, the other day, repeating his story, "and I was a boy of 18 who had learned the printing business and was staying in Decatur, Ill., then a town of about 3,000 inhabitants, and could not find work. I was boarding at the Ogelsby house, the only hotel in town, and had paid my last $5 for board and was feeling about as blue as any one can feel under those circumstances. Stephen A. Douglas, then the Democratic senator from Illinois, was a candidate for re-election and his opponent, a young lawyer named Lincoln from Springfield, and he were having a series of five addresses, which have since become so famous. Both parties were in the hotel at that time to hold a debate that night, and Douglas, the man of the hour, was upstairs in the hotel parlor with a bottle of whisky, a box of cigars and surrounded by admiring friends who came to call upon him.

"There was great excitement in the town, and it centered in the hotel, but I was feeling too blue to care about it and sat in the office downstairs, not caring to speak to any one. A tall raw-boned man sat near me as much unnoticed as myself, all hunched up in his chair, whittling a little piece of wood.

"Do you belong here?" he asked. "No." "How long have you been here?" "About a year."

"What are you doing?" "Nothing."

"That is not a good thing for a young man of your age to do. Can you find work?"

"No." I replied, feeling very rebellious against fate.

"What do you do when you are working? Have you a trade?" "Yes; I am a printer," I answered, wishing this man would stop his questions.

"Well, young man," he said kindly, "I have an interest in a newspaper in Springfield, and if you come back with me tomorrow I will see if the foreman of the printing room cannot give you a job. Will you come?"

"I do not know, I will see," I answered feeling more kindly toward this curious gentleman.

"Don't you want a job?" he asked quickly. "Yes, I do," I answered, but I did not tell him the reason for my not accepting his offer. I had no means to go to Springfield, sixty miles away. It was the first time that I was broke and I hated to own it.

"He said nothing more, and that night after the debate, where there were as many as a half million people present in proportion to the size of the town, I came face to face with him again in the hotel office.

"Well, young man," he said, "are you going with me?"

"Then I confessed the reason why I could not."

"I knew then that my friend was Abraham Lincoln, the young Republican candidate for senator, who had debated with Stephen A. Douglas.

"It was near midnight and the steamboat was due to leave in a short time.

"You come with me, anyhow," said Mr. Lincoln, "and I will take care of you."

"I did not require much urging, and went to my room to collect my small belongings and joined his party.

"We arrived in Springfield the next morning and Mr. Lincoln took me to his home, giving me the only vacant room in his house, and I ate breakfast with the family. After that he took me to his law office and had a talk with his partner, Mr. Herndon; then we went to the printing office of the Illinois State Register, the paper in which he had an interest, and we had a talk with the foreman. The latter, after asking me to write something, said he was sorry, he saw I knew the work, but there was no position that he could give me at present, promising me, however, the first chance of work. At that my spirits, which had risen, dropped down again to a still lower ebb, until my benefactor said:

"Now, I am going to be away a great deal on this campaign and Mr. Herndon will be very busy, so I would you like to stay in the office and answer the questions of visitors for $4 a week? That was before the day of stenographers.

"I did not think there was so much money in the world, so I accepted the offer gladly and remained a resident of the Lincoln household for nine weeks. Mrs. Lincoln's aunt was go-

GETTING ON THE BAND WAGON.

GOOD LIVER REMEDY FREE

When you suffer from any form of indigestion it is always well to take something for the liver, as usually the trouble lies there. If you are bilious, have a bloated feeling after eating, if you belch, if your skin is yellowish you may be sure it is liver trouble.

What you need is something to stir up the liver, to arouse the gastric juices so that they will aid in the digestion of your food. A very good remedy for this, and one highly recommended by those who have used it, is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which you can obtain of any druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a bottle. But if you have any doubt about its merits, and would prefer to try it first, send your address to Dr. Caldwell and he will promptly send you a free sample bottle.

Thousands of people first learned of this remarkable cure for stomach, liver and bowel troubles through a free sample. Mrs. Frank Lilly of Plainview, Ill., sent for one and it cured her and she is open in saying that she will never take pills or strong cathartics again, as Syrup Pepsin acts so mildly. Mr. W. L. Bryant, the Postmaster at Sardis, Tenn., says he will never be without it again. No sick person can afford to ignore a remedy so highly endorsed as this. It is good for all the family from infancy to old age, because it is mild, free from gripping and yet promptly effective. Furthermore, results are absolutely guaranteed or money will be refunded.

ing to make them a visit and that I had the only vacant room in the house he would make arrangements for me to stay with a lady across the street, who had two young men boarding with her, if I did not care. could not object and moved, and I suppose Mr. Lincoln paid my board all the time I was there as well as my salary, for I know I did not pay any. Then one day the foreman sent for me to work on a brief, and when I was finished, to my great delight, paid me full journeyman's wages. Altogether I remained in Springfield four months, going from there to St. Louis, where I went into a printing office; but I soon returned to Cincinnati and to Ludlow, where I have lived for nearly sixty years.

Mr. Bentley never had an opportunity to renew his acquaintance with Abraham Lincoln, but never forgot the helping hand which he extended to the lonely, despondent boy that night in Decatur, which played such an important part in the history of the great president himself.

WAS READY WITH AN ANSWER

How Lincoln's Ingenious Mind Framed Effective Reply to Objections Against Emancipation.

PERHAPS no story of Lincoln's was told under graver conditions and with more emphatic application than that which closed the famous interview on the steamer River Queen, at Hampton Roads, between Mr. Lincoln, Secretary Seward and the peace commission of the Confederacy. The discussion had reached its kernel, slavery.

The southern argument, in all its impressive force, was brought forward. If the south were to consent to a peace on the basis of emancipation of the slaves, the entire structure of southern society would be plunged into irretrievable ruin. No work would be done, nothing would be cultivated; whites and blacks alike must starve, for the freed slaves, accustomed to overseers, would undoubtedly abstain wholly from labor.

The president waited for Seward to make some effective rejoinder. But the experienced statesman could find no cogent reply. At length, Lincoln framed the answer, in a story culminating in a phrase that gave common currency to a colloquialism, coined among the log cabins of negroes and poor whites.

"Gentlemen," addressing the commissioners, "your statement of the conditions reminds me of a man out in Illinois, by the name of Case, who undertook to raise a very large herd of hogs. But, as they grew, it became too big a job to feed them. Finally he planted an immense field in potatoes; and, as soon as the potatoes were fairly grown, turned the whole herd into the field. The hogs did their own digging, and he leaned over the fence, proud of his idea. A neighbor came along.

"Well, well, Mr. Case," he remarked, "this is a grand idea. But butchering time is 'way off in December, and the frost comes easily. Before you are ready to kill those hogs, the ground will be frozen a foot deep."

"Case scratched his head, and thought it over; but there was only one answer, and he gave it.

"I suppose it'll go pretty hard with their snouts; but all I can see for it is, root, hog, or die."

Lincoln in His Prime

Sketched from a photograph of Lincoln at about 40. Note the keen, shrewd, though kindly expression of his eyes and mouth, and his fearless directness.

Humorous Even in Discomfort. "When Lincoln was on circuit in his law days," said a Chicago veteran to the Pittsburg Gazette-Times, "he used to put up at some pretty bad taverns—averns where, big as he was, by Crinins, he and the judges and the lawyers would have to sleep two and three in a bed. And what beds they were! Once, after a wretched night, Lincoln got up and walked to a notice on the wall that said, 'No smoking in the bedrooms.' He chuckled grimly. Then he took a pencil from his pocket and scribbled beneath the notice: 'The deas don't like it.'"

Capsidonna Porous Plaster

Will give relief when properly applied. For rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica, pleurisy and all aches, pains, sprains, stiffness, lameness, backache, spinal complaints, kidney diseases and nerve and muscular disorders should be placed immediately over the affected part and smoothed with the hand.

For all lung and chest troubles, including bronchitis, asthma, pneumonia or inflammation of the lungs, and consumption apply the plaster over the lungs and also one between the shoulders.

In dyspepsia, indigestion and sea sickness, a great relief will be afforded by applying the plaster over the pit of the stomach.
